

Use of Tritium-Labeled Compounds for Analysis of Steroids and Peptides in Biological Objects¹

I. Yu. Nagaev, V. P. Shevchenko, V. V. Podval'nyuk,
N. I. Ayushinova, and N. F. Myasoedov

Institute of Molecular Genetics, Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow, Russia

Received December 8, 2000

Abstract - For studying the mechanism of the functioning and metabolism of progesterone, Semax, and Tafsins derivatives, a procedure was developed for their determination in complex biological systems. The labeling procedure was developed, and labeled analogs of these compounds, required as references, were prepared.